

INDEX

Foreword

Introduction: Citizens and the European Democratic Experiment

1. Citizens: a problem for Europe
2. Mirroring in American Citizenship
3. Defects of Vision
4. Choices
5. Empirical Phenomenology
6. Active Citizenship and the Research on Europe
7. The Structure of the Book

PART ONE
THEMATIZATIONS

1. Beyond the Nation-State Model
 - 1.1. The EU as a multi-level and polycentric governance system
 - 1.1.1. Technocratic Model and Participative Model
 - 1.1.2. Subjects, Mechanisms, Networks
 - 1.1.3. European Governance and Civic Activism
 - 1.2. The EU as a “Regional” State
 - 1.2.1. “Regional State”
 - 1.2.2. The EU and “Policies without Politics”
 - 1.2.3. The Government with its Citizens
 - 1.3. The EU as a “Cosmopolitan Empire”
 - 1.3.1. Europe as Europeanization
 - 1.3.2. From the First to the Second Modernity
 - 1.3.3. The “Cosmopolitan Empire”
 - 1.3.4. Horizontal Europeanization and Civil Society
 - 1.4. Conclusions
2. The Laboratory of European Citizenship
 - 2.1. Side Effects
 - 2.2. Starting Points
 - 2.2.1. A Working Definition
 - 2.2.2. The Sites of European Citizenship
 - 2.3. Rights, Membership, Participation
 - 2.3.1. Rights
 - 2.3.2. Membership
 - 2.3.3. Participation
 - 2.4. Questions, Answers, Challenges
 - 2.5. Conclusions
3. The Ambiguities of Participatory Democracy
 - 3.1. The Foundations of Participatory Democracy
 - 3.2. Participatory Democracy and the European Union
 - 3.3. Competing Models
 - 3.4. Broken Promises
 - 3.4.1. Functional View
 - 3.4.2. Discussions, not Deliberation
 - 3.4.3. “Brussels Civil Society”
 - 3.5. The Participatory Democracy Model and the Active Citizenship Experience
 - 3.6. Participatory Democracy and Circular Subsidiarity
 - 3.7. Conclusions

PART TWO

POLICIES

4. Institutions Vis-à-vis Civic Organizations
 - 4.1. Is there a “European” Policy Style towards Civic Organizations?
 - 4.2. National Governments
 - 4.2.1. Formal Criteria and Negative Paradigms
 - 4.2.2. Public Administrations: Prime Interlocutors
 - 4.2.3. Prerogatives and Forms of Support
 - 4.2.4. Diverging Agendas and Feedback from Civic Organizations

- 4.2.5. An analytic review
 - 4.3. The European Union Institutions
 - 4.3.1. The lack of a Unified Policy Framework
 - 4.3.2. Distinguishing Elements
 - 4.3.3. Differences and Difficulties
 - 4.3.4. Summary
 - 4.4. Conclusions
 5. The Rights of European Active Citizenship and their Practice
 - 5.1. The European Charter of Active Citizenship
 - 5.2. Monitoring and Evaluating the Implementation of Rights – An Experiment
 - 5.3. Emerging Phenomena
 - 5.3.1. National Dimension
 - 5.3.2. The European Dimension
 - 5.4. The Evaluation Results
 - 5.5. Conclusions
 6. Representation in Question
 - 6.1. To “stand for” and to “act for”
 - 6.2. From Representativeness to Standards for Participation in Policy Making
 - 6.3. Official and Hidden Criteria
 - 6.3.1. General Typology of Criteria
 - 6.3.2. Analysis of Existing Criteria
 - 6.3.3. Results of the Case Studies
 - 6.3.4. Results from the Partner Organizations' Evaluation of Existing Criteria
 - 6.4. What to Do Next?
 - 6.4.1. The Remarks of Partner Organizations as a “Citizens’ Jury”
 - 6.4.2. The Proposal's Core Assumptions
 - 6.4.3. Guidelines
 - 6.5. Echoes
 - 6.6. Conclusions
 7. The European Civic Movement for Patients’ Rights
 - 7.1. The European Charter of Patients’ Rights
 - 7.2. Civic Audit on the State of Patients’ Rights
 - 7.3. Patients’ Rights on the European Agenda
 - 7.4. Conclusions
 8. Companies and Citizens in Europe
 - 8.1. Business and European Governance
 - 8.2. The European Union and Corporate Social Responsibility
 - 8.3. Assessment and Diagnosis
 - 8.4. Partnerships between Civic Organizations and Private Companies
 - 8.4.1. The research
 - 8.4.2. The projects
 - 8.4.3. The basis of the partnerships
 - 8.4.4. The partnerships' management
 - 8.4.5. The partnerships' evolution
 - 8.4.6. The effects of partnerships
 - 8.4.7. The profile of partnerships
 - 8.5. Conclusions

Conclusion

1. Citizens who Make Europe
2. From Actors to Agents
3. Mixed Democracy
4. The Gates of the City-Europe

Bibliography

Annexes:

- European Charter of Patients' Rights
- Citizens' Agenda
- European Charter of Active Citizenship
- Background Projects